

Pointers For El Pasoans

RAPID STRIDES MADE BY ACME SHEET METAL WORKS

In the very front rank of the firms which are winning El Paso such an enviable reputation as an industrial center is the Acme Sheet Metal Works at 411 Texas street. Examples of the high grade work done by this organization will be found in nearly every section of New Mexico, Arizona, west Texas and old Mexico, and a constantly growing patronage indicates that the Acme people are doing business along lines which are appreciated by the public.

The Acme Sheet Metal Works business was established December, 1912, by Charles A. Kauffman and Ollie R. Moore, the present owners. Both of these gentlemen are recognized experts in their line, and they have spared no effort to make their every job the kind that wins more business.

In connection with a general sheet metal business, the Acme company makes a specialty of the installation of ventilating and hot air heating systems. Notable examples of their work in this line are to be found in the sheet metal work on the cornices and in the heating and ventilating apparatus in El Paso's fine Masonic temple, and in the big Noll Building at Phoenix, Arizona. Acme sheet-metal work is also represented in the St. Regis, Ramsey, Knickerbocker and Lake apartments, this city, and the big store and office building of the Detroit Copper Mining company at Morenci, Arizona.

In a word, the Acme Sheet Metal Works are equipped for the efficient handling of every possible kind of structural, sheet-metal work.

have become recognized by successful poultry raisers as the standard for egg and flesh production. They are composed of choice grains and seeds, carefully selected as regards purity, cleanliness, sweetness and freshness, and are mixed with such care that each mixture is a scientifically balanced ration for the purpose for which it is intended. They stand pre-eminent in the realm of poultry feeds today.
